

VOL. IV.
THE DAILY CLARION.
LOVE AND HELP EACH OTHER.

How happy we might ever be
If we could love each other—
And make each man a brother;
But to be right, in life's rough field,
To help our comrades on,
By union's firm strength won.

How happy we could always be
If we could love each other—
And make each man a brother;
But to be right, in life's rough field,
To help our comrades on,
By union's firm strength won.

Alexandria, on Red River, we are sorry to learn by the Democrat, has been again overlaid, once by a crevasse which the citizens dredged by dint of hard and unremitting work on Saturday last, and again on Sunday morning, which, owing to constant and excessive rains, they could not close, and on the 3d the place was still overflowed, and there was no telling when it would subside.

The N. O. Times mentions a report that Santa Anna had been executed, by his captivity, at Sisal, Mexico. The Times supposes that the report is well founded.

A Galveston dispatch says a Monterey writer previous to the execution says: "Maximilian was stripped entirely of his clothing. Escobedo presented him with a shirt to hide his nakedness."

At a seditionary caucus in Washington thirteen avowed themselves in favor of universal suffrage.

No New Terms of Reconstruction.
The Chicago Tribune of the 29th ult., states that Congress propose an amendment to the Federal Constitution, declaring the principle of universal suffrage as fundamental and declaring the States of the power to disfranchise citizens of the United States, except for crime. But it says that this should not be a new condition of reconstruction—thus:

"In saying that in our opinion an amendment to the constitution, making the elective franchise the right of every citizen of this republic, ought to be proposed by Congress at its forthcoming session, we are utterly opposed to the idea of prescribing any new terms of reconstruction; and we would not, in any manner, have the mission of the Southern States depend on their ratification of such an amendment. The idea ought not to be tolerated for a moment, that the people of the North, having laid down their conditions, and distinctly promised the South that her representatives shall be admitted when these conditions are complied with, will refuse to carry out their part of the agreement and the utmost good faith, the moment the people of the South shall comply with these terms. But while such an amendment as we have suggested would not and will not be made a condition of reconstruction, we are satisfied that it is time has come to propose to the Legislatures of the several States."

Cor. of Cincinnati Commercial.
Washington Speculations.

WASHINGTON, July 11, 1867.
There will be a big struggle during the session about to convene between the class of Republicans represented by the Senate by Fessenden and Fries, and in the House by Bingham and Spaulding, who opposed to reassembling at this time, finally yielded and came here to pass a Reconstruction Bill and then adjourn, and the extremists, represented by Sumner and Boutwell in the House, whose choice was to keep the fortieth Congress in session all spring and summer, and who have availed themselves of the Attorney General's opinion to whip in the reluctant members, and bring them here ostensibly to pass an explanatory bill, but in reality for very different purpose. The Democrats, I understand, give what aid and comfort they can, to the Sumner and Boutwell class, as they generally are done heretofore, for it will not be forgotten that, but for their voluntary assistance to Stevens and Boutwell in the last Congress, the Military Bill could have been passed on a formidable objectionable to the Southern people than it is at present. The Halliburton amendment, which is the most stringent and unjust feature of the measures, was put on by the refusal of the Democratic members to sustain Mr.
Bingham in his demand for the previous question on the bill as it came from the Senate. And so in the approaching session the Copperheads will play the same directly or indirectly into the hands of the fanatics, and if they can bring about confiscation or impeachment by any thing short of a square deal in their favor, they will certainly do it. There was a time when the Democratic party would not have done this, but that was before it lost its brains and its principles too. As represented Congress now, it has neither.
